CHANGES TO COME

I am redoing my local and home-study courses to simplify instruction for my students and for me. Instead of paging through separate sections of worksheets, drill sheets and project sheets students will work their way through single books, one for each of the six Instruction Sets in the course. (Some of the more difficult Instruction Sets are divided into Sub-Sets.) In either case, the pages in each Set are arranged in the order they will be worked on each lesson. (Video demonstrations for the Worksheets, Drill Sheets and Project Sheets are arranged in that same order.)

Students will do an assigned number of exercises in each Instruction Set. The assignments are of three types: Worksheets, Drills, and Drawing Projects. The Worksheets introduce and develop new skills, the Drills permanently establish those skills through repetition and the Drawing Projects integrate, coordinate and demonstrate them.

MANAGING YOUR LESSONS

All Lessons are divided more or less equally into three time blocks: 1. Drills 2. Worksheets 3. Projects. So if your lesson is an hour and a half long, it will be divided into 3 half-hour segments, etc. If you finish your assignments with time remaining in a particular segment, you may spend more time on the other assignments.

Home-Study Practice Sessions. All students are expected – or at least strongly encouraged – to work on their assignments at home and to do so in the same order as above.

KEEP TRACK OF YOUR TIMES.
